Lhasa Ali Kailash Tour

Trip Overview

Set out for the most spiritual journey that also caters the magnificence of Himalayan beauty and raw Himalayan nature

Lhasa Ali to Kailash yatra is one of the alternative travel route to avoid long road driving distance to Manarovar lake. The route is newly recognized and only special yatris take travel through Ali flight from Lhasa. From Lhasa, Every day 1 or 2 flight to Ali takes only 2 hours, which is always busy and expensive as well. The airport was build for Chinese military purpose to develop and connect West Tibet. Only after 2010 Ad, the airport opens for public flight service. Lhasa Ali flights are very depend on weather and wind pressure. The flight may delay, cancel and post pond due to weather reason.

From Ali airport, we drive to Mansarovar lake, about 200kms. And make a pilgrimage holy circuit of Mansarovar lake from clockwise. After parikrama we stop night at Tsu Gompa (A Milarapa/Padma Sambhawa Monastery) Just front of mansarovar lake and participant for our spiritual puja, hawan and ritual karma. (Bathing at lake mansarovar is strongly prohibited since 2017) we can take water out and have a holy bath shann.

Next morning, we continue drive about 40kms to Yamadwar along the Darchen city and begin our first day holiest kailash parikrama - kora yatra. Suprauv darshan of Kailash parvat then continue secret walk to Deraphuk, which called North face of Kailash and very closed to Atmalingam. Stop night at very simple mud house with sharing accommodation. Second day parikrama is one of most challenge and important day. Cross 5630meter altitude Dolma-La pass, then we reach Zutulpuk Monastery and stop night at simple mud house. All the catering service provided by our support team on vegetarian based.

On third day kora, we walk only few hours and take a drive to Ali city for next morning flight to Lhasa.
